RAILROADERS' HALL

A lasting tribute to the men and women of railroading

RAILROAD MUSEUM OF PENNSYLVANIA

A Way Of Life

Railroading has been a way of life for hundreds of thousands of men and women employed on the trains, in the shops, offices, wayside towers, stations and along the right-of-way for over 150 years. Railroaders have built, operated, maintained and managed America's greatest industry...an industry that helped propel our nation to international distinction and prominence.

Railroaders' Hall

You are invited to participate in Railroaders' Hall, a program that provides enduring recognition for the people who serve, and have served, on America's railroads. Railroaders' Hall—a permanent, major exhibit within the Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania's Rolling Stock Hall—displays individual name plaques of present, retired and deceased railroad employees. A favorite exhibit of visitors to the Museum, Railroaders' Hall presents, for posterity, the service record of thousands of individual railroad men and women.

A Meaningful Tribute

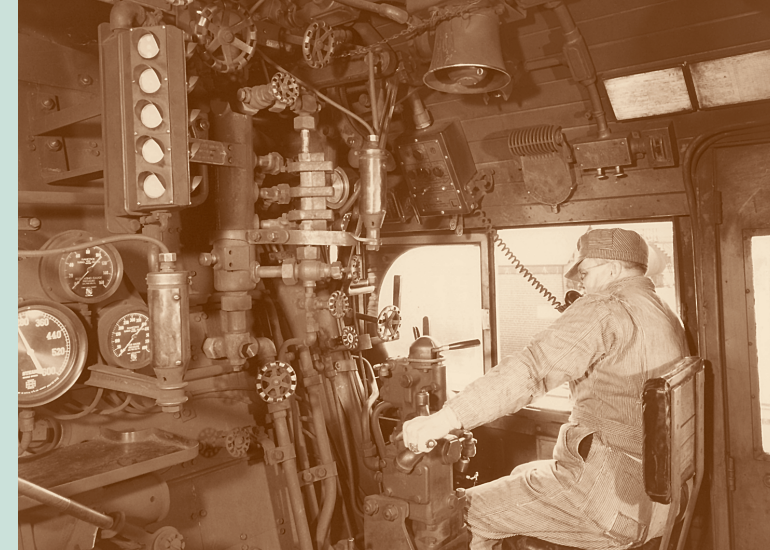

A handsome brass plaque in Railroaders' Hall at the Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania is a meaningful and unique way to pay lasting tribute to a family member, loved one, friend or colleague who served, or is serving, in America's railroad industry. Plaques contain the name, occupation, service record and railroad affiliation of a railroad employee. The railroad employee's name also will be recognized on the Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania's web site. The web site honor roll is updated twice annually.

Plaques are available for a tax deductible contribution of $100 or more, which may be made payable over a three tax-year period, if so desired. You will receive an acknowledgement of your participation in Railroaders' Hall. You may also choose to have the recipient, or the family of the recipient, receive an acknowledgement.

Contributions to Railroaders' Hall support the Friends of the Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania Endowment and Memorial Funds, benefiting the Museum's preservation, education, interpretive and other programs.
